

To All Our Clinical Customers,

Dale Medical Products, Inc. wishes to recognize the thousands of brave and selfless nurses, respiratory therapists, paramedics, EMT's and other frontline providers during the COVID-19 pandemic. We can barely begin to understand the stress and physical hardships you are going through during this most challenging time and we appreciate the sacrifices you are making. You are all setting the highest examples of caring and professionalism to treat patients infected with this life-threatening coronavirus.

Dale pledges to do our utmost to ensure that you get the products you need to urgently treat your patients. We are working overtime to manufacture and ship our respiratory and critical care products that are so urgently needed to fight this battle. But we are also here to support you with clinical education, in-service materials, and the training you need to properly use our tube holders and other products. Also, please explore our perspectivesinnursing.org website, where you can choose from several relevant articles, take their respective tests, and quickly earn contact hours from the comfort of your home or office. This is just another way that Dale always supports our clinical end-users to make you always better.

Sincerely,

John Brezack
President
